COMMENT OF THE DAY

Defence Plan

OF the many post-war problems confronting the British Government—both Socialist and Conservative—none has been more difficult and complicated than that of assuring the country's fulfilment of its obligations to the North Atlantic Treaty Organisation and of making an adequate contribution to the defence of Western Europe. In the matter of policy both British Socialists (with the exception of the Bevanites) and Tories have remained at one, both parties recognise the inescapable necessity of a rearmament programme designed to resist aggression; both believe in and accept the principle of collective security. But Britain has been gravely handicapped in the task of implementing her defence programme. Financial embarrassment, shortage of raw materials and manpower requirements for the maintenance of her manufacturing industries have produced an inevitable lag in her rearmament schedule. Moreover, circumstances have demanded that prime preoccupation be centred on rescuing the nation from an economic morass which threatens her existence.

BRITAIN'S allies, however, can find comfort in the knowledge that she has no intention of repudiating her responsibilities, a point which is given emphasis by the announcement that under Mr Churchill's inspiration, the Imperial General Staff has drawn up a revised defence programme which, if approved, and when enacted, will represent a more formidable contribution to West European security than that originally envisaged. The programme is based on the conception of developing to the limit of the country's resources the latest mechanical means of warfare, with manpower as a subsidiary consideration. It is a bold and imaginative plan, but one well within Britain's capabilities to fulfil. Obviously it will require NATO's approval, for it will involve, in certain respects, a redrawing of the North Atlantic defence blueprint. On the other hand its summary rejection is unthinkable.

Persian Troop Movements

Reported EXCITEMENT IN TEHERAN Oil Commission's Proposal

Teheran, Sept. 23. Excitement ran high here today as a result of an unconfirmed report that Persian artillery had been moved down to reinforce south Persian garrisons to counter alleged British troop movements near the Iraq-Iran border.

The report appeared in the evening newspaper Ittelaat, but has hitherto lacked authoritative confirmation.

Meanwhile, the latest indications are that Prime Minister Mohammed Mossadeq might give Britain and the United States three weeks in which to reply to Persia's counter-proposals to the Anglo-American offer for settling the Anglo-Iranian oil dispute.

The counter-proposals will be submitted today (Tuesday). Earlier proposals said the time limit for a reply would be five days.

It was becoming evident here last night that the Persian reply to the Anglo-American offer would be sent both to the Americans and the British, contrary to earlier expectations that it would be sent only to Britain.

The influential evening newspaper Kohkan said that the Indian and Turkish Ambassadors, both of whom saw Dr Mossadeq on Sunday, tried to persuade Persia not to bring about a full rupture of relations with Britain.

This newspaper added that Dr Mossadeq told the Ambassadors to persuade Britain "not to persist in their adamant views" rather than ask him to climb down. The pro-Government newspaper Bakhtar said that Dr Mossadeq told the Ambassadors to persuade Britain "not to persist in their adamant views" rather than ask him to climb down. The pro-Government newspaper Bakhtar said that Dr Mossadeq told the Ambassadors to persuade Britain "not to persist in their adamant views" rather than ask him to climb down.

It added: "Both Britain and America would then have the chance to undo the wrongs they had done to Iran in the past if they accepted the counter-proposals."

fewer than 18 agreements with big companies for the sale of oil.

All the contracts had been made against adequate deposits. The official added that Iran would sell oil to anyone—even to the Soviet Union.

The drafting of the Persian counter-proposals was completed yesterday by the Persian Mixed Oil Commission, which then handed it over to Dr Mossadeq for presentation to the British Embassy.

"It is up to Dr Mossadeq to do what he deems fit," said Senator Sepahbodi, chairman of the Oil Commission, after he had handed the counter-proposals to the Premier. He revealed that he had made a few changes in an advisory manner.

Senator Sepahbodi's statement came as a surprise because the Oil Commission had mandatory powers in all matters pertaining to oil under the Nationalisation Law.

Informed circles said the Premier would include the threat of severing relations when he hands the counter-proposals to Britain.

APPROVES PROPOSALS

Teheran, Sept. 23. The Iranian Prime Minister, Dr Mohammed Mossadeq, has approved the Mixed Oil Commission's answer to the Anglo-American proposals and the reply demands the immediate payment of £49,000,000 a member of the Commission disclosed today.

The source said that the reply, which is due to be delivered on Tuesday, proposed a refund if it is later found that Britain does not owe Iran this much.

However, "this claim of indebtedness has already been rejected by Britain."

The Oil Commission's answer suggests that after Britain pays the £49,000,000 an inquiry be made into conflicting British and Iranian claims.

It is suggested that any refund could be paid out of oil product royalties due to the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company.

The source said that the Commission's only change—in Dr Mossadeq's proposals was to amend the procedure for assessing counter claims for compensation.—United Press.

TRAPPED IN A WATER TAP

Brighton, Sept. 22. A woman was trapped by a tap here today when she pushed her finger up the spout in an attempt to clear it.

The fire brigade was called in. Firemen worked for an hour in an attempt to release her. In the end they saved the tap and took her to the hospital where a plumber was called in to operate.—Reuter.

Republican Chiefs Rally Behind Nixon

Washington, Sept. 22. The Republican High Command rallied today behind Senator Richard Nixon with words, money and an indication that he will keep his place as vice-presidential candidate on the Republican ticket.

Republican National Headquarters here shelled out more than $75,000 for radio and television time to give the California Senator a chance to explain the $18,235 contribution he received from wealthy West Coast persons.

The Republican national chairman, Arthur Summerfield, issued a statement denouncing the "smear" campaign against Nixon. Mr Nixon himself said he would resume his tour after the broadcast.

Meanwhile, the Democrats kept up a running commentary on the Republican candidate's financial affairs.

WANTS LEGISLATION

Senator Wayne Morse said today that he would try again next year to persuade Congress to pass his bill requiring Members of Congress to make public all income and donations.

Senator Robert Taft, who plans to discuss the Nixon case with Mr Dwight Eisenhower in Cincinnati, said it was "perfectly legitimate" for a Senator to have a campaign fund the whole time he was in office. Senator Taft said he began his own campaign for re-election in 1949 more than a year before the election, using "money that people gave me."

Jack Kroll, national director of the CIO Political Action Committee, described Senator Nixon as the "kept man of California millionaires."

Senator Nixon returned to his Los Angeles home, base of his operations, but refused to say whether he would resign because of the furore caused by his political expenses fund. Mr Nixon flew here from Portland. He looked less buoyant and cheerful than usual.—United Press.

30 Million Rupees Tunnel Scheme

New Delhi, Sept. 22. The Indian government plans to bore a three-mile tunnel through the 11,000-foot-high Pir Panjal Himalayan range linking Jammu and Kashmir, according to reports reaching here.

At present snow disrupts all communications, and even air services for many months every year.

Foreign firms will be invited to tender for the 30,000,000 rupees (£2,250,000) scheme, which is to be financed by the government.—Associated Press.

In a Middlesex town recently a privately owned plane narrowly missed a Sunday School. One of the engines stopped, the plane stalled, and headed straight for the school. It then staggered and hit a lime tree, finally exploding just outside the schoolroom. None of the children or the congregation in the adjoining church was injured, but the pilot lost his life.—Daily Express picture.

Death Of Ian Hay

Petersfield, Sept. 22. Ian Hay, British novelist, playwright, historian, died from lung trouble in a nursing home near here today. He was 76.

He entered the hospital in July after returning home from a health trip to Majorca.

Ian Hay—his full name is Major-General John Hay Beith—published his first novel, "Pip" in 1907 and his most recent, a 125,000-word history of World War II, commissioned by the British War Office in 1947.

In between he produced a steady stream of light novels and plays interspersed with occasional more serious works.

Ian Hay once told the London writers circle how Edgar Wallace figured in the publication of his first novel. The manuscript went to a London publishing house, who invited him down from his home in the Highlands for an interview.

"The manager persuaded me that the book was good and he would publish it—I paid him £50," Ian Hay said.

"Overjoyed at the chance, I scraped up the money and my book was published."

The manager and owner of the publishing firm was Edgar Wallace, famous writer of thrillers. They met one night, 16 years later at the Press Club in London.

Edgar Wallace confessed to Ian Hay that when he came into his office on the day of the interview the gas light on his phone had been cut off and his £50 had saved the firm.—Reuter.

LABOUR MP DIES

London, Sept. 22. Mr George Tomlinson, Labour Minister of Education from 1947 to 1951, died here tonight aged 62.

Mr Tomlinson, who left school at the age of 12, was deputy to Mr Ernest Bevin, former Labour Foreign Secretary, during the wartime Coalition Government.

His death will mean a bye-election at Farnworth, which he held with a majority of about 8,000 in the last election.—Reuter.

Plan To Rescue Twelve Men By Ski-Fitted Plane Abandoned

London, Sept. 22. Plans to send a ski-fitted Dakota to the rescue of 12 men stranded for nearly a week on a desolate Arctic ice-cap, have been abandoned for the time being at least, the Air Ministry reported tonight. The Dakota has flown back to Goose Bay, Labrador, for "modification", the Ministry said, quoting the latest messages from Greenland.

Pending its return, an attempt to rescue the men is likely to be made by an American Grumman SA-16 amphibian plane, equipped with jet-assisted take-off rockets.

Bad conditions held up week-end attempts at rescue and the Grumman today was still waiting for better weather. A British Hastings transport plane has dropped supplies five times by parachute to the stranded men, whose plane crashed-landed last Tuesday in North Greenland.

"Reports say that the men are quite comfortable," the Air Ministry added.

Commander Jim Simpson, leader of the scientific expedition for whom the stranded men were dropping supplies at the time of their crash, has moved his camp over to the aircraft and is advising the men how to live in Arctic conditions.

IN GOOD SPIRITS

Commander Henry Parker, of the Royal Navy, Director of the London end of the scientific expedition, said here today that he is in frequent contact with the expedition which is passing on messages from the marooned fliers.

Latest messages from the stranded men today showed that they were in good spirits. It asked simply "should we grow beards?" Air Ministry officials took it as a signpost of a skidiffidit. Six American planes have arrived at the United States air base at Thule, North Greenland to help in the rescue attempt.—Reuter.

Stole Tombstone

New York, Sept. 22. Edwin Charles Burns, 39, was charged today with stealing a 100-lb tombstone from a grave in a local cemetery, taking it to Newark, New Jersey and placing it on the grave of his stepfather's mother. "The stone bore the inscription 'Mother'—United Press.

Tsun Wan Disaster: 12 Missing

30 Huts Destroyed: Boulder Breaks Catchment

At least 12 people are missing and 30 huts destroyed as the result of a sudden overflow of water from a catchment at Sai Ngau Kok village, Tsun Wan, last night.

This morning Waterworks engineers were rushed to the area to divert the catchment water to a stream in the hill overlooking the village, while Social Welfare officers and workers took out cooked food supplies to the homeless villagers.

The disaster was caused by a boulder, weighing many tons, being dislodged during last night's heavy rain. It crashed into the catchment, breaking both the wall and the flooring.

The overflow then cascaded onto the village, sweeping away huts and, it is feared, causing the death of at least ten people.

Relief work was quickly organised this morning by the Social Welfare Office. Chief Assistant Social Welfare Officer D.C. Bray, together with Assistant S.W.O. C.N. Li, accompanied by workers, went to the scene. Also despatched was a lorry containing cooked food for the unfortunate villagers.

Because of the continual overflow from the broken catchment, Waterworks Department officials began diverting the catchment water into a natural stream higher in the hills.

Boulder Kills Mother & Child

A woman, Wong Cheng, 30, and her one-year-old daughter were killed shortly after 3.10 a.m. today when a huge boulder, weighing between six and seven tons, rolled down the hillside above Valley Road, Hung Hom, and fell on to a squatters' hut in which the family was living.

The woman's husband, Lam Cheung, 40, a hawker, and another woman, Tseng Tse, 40, were injured.

It is believed the boulder became loosened during the heavy rain.

The Fire Brigade and ambulances rushed to the scene, and rescue operations were immediately started. The bodies were recovered shortly afterwards.

Both the injured have been admitted to Kowloon Hospital.

Recruiting Supermen

Washington, Sept. 22. The Navy disclosed today that it is recruiting supermen from the fleet to man the world's first atomic-powered submarine, the Nautilus.

The Nautilus, with unheard range, speeds and almost indefinite underwater capability, is expected to be ready in 1954.

Commander David Bell, in charge of submarine placements, said that volunteers from among the Navy's 1,500 highly selected submarine officers are being screened for "good rugged, healthy people."

"They must be supermen and be willing to stay at sea and underwater indefinitely," Commander Bell said.—United Press.

WORLD CO-OPERATION OR DISASTER: WARNING BY INDIAN PRIME MINISTER

London, Sept. 22.
Parliamentarians from 25 countries, meeting here to plan world government, today received a message from India's Prime Minister, Mr Jawaharlal Nehru, warning that they faced the "alternative of world co-operation or world disaster."

Peking On POW Issue

San Francisco, Sept. 22.
The Communist Peking Radio today said the United Nations Command decision to release 11,000 more Korean prisoners on October 1 would make the whole basis of the armistice talks "null and void."
The Red broadcast, heard here by The Associated Press, said the lists of prisoners exchanged on December 18, 1951, were the agreed basis for negotiations. It protested what it called "unilateral disposal of prisoners."
Truce talks are in their eighth straight week of recess. Negotiators are deadlocked over the prisoner exchange issue.
The U. N. Command announced in Tokyo that the 11,000 Korean civilians had been re-screened and would be turned over to the Republic of Korea Government. Some 27,000 others were released months ago.
The Peking broadcast quoted Alan Winnington, London Daily Worker correspondent, who frequently serves as a weather-vane for opinions of the Communist truce delegation. — Associated Press.

Japanese "Proof" Of Better Working Conditions

Buxton, Sept. 22.
Japanese delegates brought a film to an international cotton conference here today to prove that working conditions for Japanese mill workers have improved.

The Japanese are meeting with Indian, British, United States and West European cotton experts to discuss further business prospects.

Some sections of the British Press have been featuring stories recently, claiming that "sweated labour" in Japan helped her beat Britain in world cotton markets.

While committees met behind closed doors at today's meeting to examine trading statistics, the Japanese showed colour film, "Spinning Princesses," to other delegates. It depicted working conditions and a typical 24 hours in the life of Japanese mill girls, who form 90 per cent of Japan's total labour force.

The Japanese also presented a statement claiming that mill labour works six days a week with very little overtime, and that real wages of mill workers had been increased year after year.

The statement said about 10 per cent of the male workers and 83 per cent of the women workers lived in factory dormitories free of charge.

Sir Raymond Street, Chairman of the British Cotton Board, said after the film show: "We have seen a picture of faraway Japan so beautifully idealized that it might seem even further away than the geographical Japan." It was a picture of "the best of the Japanese cotton mills," he said.

LIMITATION?

Mr. I. Muto, President of the big Kaneaguchi Spinning Company, told reporters that Japan's spindleage had risen to nearly seven million this summer. With the present state of the

The delegates — there are 100, most of them members of Parliament — started a five-day conference to consider ways and means of setting up a world government and an international authority to develop economic resources.

In his message Mr Nehru told the conference, organized by the World Association of Parliamentarians for World Government: "Technological improvements have knit the world together and made it possible for a real free world government."

Mr Selwyn Lloyd, British Minister of State for Foreign Affairs, told delegates that the United Nations was "tending to become a sort of propaganda platform from which to make bitter attacks upon other nations."

This tendency was growing, he said.
An Italian woman Member of Parliament, 65-year-old Signora Tibaldi Chiesi, said: "We must strive to act, not to destroy the United Nations but to give the United Nations the power to act."

A plea for his country's admission to the United Nations — vetoed by Russia last week — was made by the Japanese delegate, Mr K. Kashiwagi.
World government would be much more possible if conducted through the United Nations, but it all the peace-loving nations were not permitted to belong, he did not see how it could be possible.

Mr A. C. Guha, an Indian M.P., told the conference that he believed Britain should take a more imaginative view in Malaya. The struggle there was not of the same character as those in Indo-China or Korea.

PEER'S WARNING
He did not think Britain recanted her decision to leave India. By leaving, she had obtained India's friendship.

"I think in Malaya, also, such a position can be achieved," he said.

A leading British scientist, Lord Boyd Orr, said: "Some form of world government, is the only hope for the survival of our civilisation."

In the Presidential address to the Conference Lord Boyd Orr warned that the powers of modern science will produce death and destruction unless the nations unite to keep the peace and promote the welfare of their peoples.

Lord Boyd Orr, winner of the Nobel Peace Prize in 1949, said:
"The conference will consider ways and means of putting the world on the road to unity. It may be by changes in the constitution of the United Nations, by nations beginning to co-operate to eliminate poverty from the under-developed countries or by other means."

FEDERATED EUROPE

Strasbourg, Sept. 22.
The six nations who are to work out a federal constitution for a United States of Europe began their task here today.

Representatives of France, Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg met in private committee. These are the nations of the Schuman coal-steel pool.

Observers were present from eight other countries which have refused to join the six at this stage—Britain, Eire, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Iceland, Greece and Turkey.

This "pre-constituent committee" first elected Dr Heinrich von Brentano, Christian Democrat member of the West German Bundestag (West German lower house), as president. An official statement issued tonight at the Headquarters of the 15-nation Council of Europe said: "The committee instructed a temporary working party of ten members, under the chairmanship of President von Brentano, to prepare on its behalf a plan of work and rules of organisation which will enable it to bring its inquiries to a conclusion as soon as possible."

STILL UNCERTAIN

"This working party will meet in Brussels at the Belgian Senate on October 8. The full committee will hold a new session of several days, from October 23 to 25, at the French National Assembly or at the Council of the Republic."

In their resolution of September 10, the six Ministers of Foreign Affairs indicated their intention of formulating questions for submission to the (Schuman pool) Assembly. The Committee asked its President to get in touch with the six Ministers of Foreign Affairs and press them to lay these questions before the Committee and its working group at an early date, if possible before their next meeting.

The last sentence means the Committee is still uncertain about its terms of reference. — Reuter.

Replying Within A Few Days

Washington, Sept. 22.
Britain, France and the United States will reply within the next few days to Russia's latest call for a German Peace Conference, a State Department spokesman disclosed today.

The three Western Powers have already insisted that an International Commission must first investigate the possibility of free elections in East and West Germany. — Reuter.

British Troops For Korea

Liverpool, Sept. 22.
The 1st Battalion, the Duke of Wellington's Regiment, embarked in the troopship Devonshire today, bound for Korea.
Among them were three members of the Gloucestershire Regiment who have volunteered for another tour of duty in Korea.
The 1st Battalion Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders returned from Korea in the troopship Empire Halladale, which docked in the Clyde, Scotland, today. — Reuter.

EGYPTIAN DENIAL OF CANAL REPORT

Cairo, Sept. 22.
The Egyptian Minister of Propaganda, Mr Fathy Radwan, tonight denied reports that the Egyptian Government intended to nationalise the Suez Canal Company.

"Nothing of the kind has been discussed by the Council of Ministers," he said.
Last week the paper Al Mokattam reported that "a note for nationalisation" of the Suez Canal had been submitted to the Ministry of Commerce and Industry for study and comment.

The note was attributed to Soliman Hafez, Vice-Premier and Minister of the Interior. Asked to comment on foreign Press reports that Egypt would make an alliance with the United States rather than join a Western defence pact for the Middle East, Fathy Radwan said:

"Any answer to this question before the Egyptian Government has formulated its foreign policy would be mere speculation."

He added that Egypt's foreign policy would be discussed at a special Cabinet meeting shortly. — Reuter.

E. German Reparations For Jews?

Jerusalem, Sept. 22.
Israel will take steps to press claims for reparations from East Germany, a Foreign Ministry spokesman declared here today.

Asked to comment on the East German Agriculture Minister's statement during his visit to Bonn last week, the spokesman declared the Foreign Ministry was examining the authenticity of the Press reports and if the Minister's reported statement proves authoritative it would be regarded as "an important step towards negotiating for reparations from East Germany."

In the first official reaction to Herr Goldenbaum's statement, the spokesman said: "If East Germany's willingness to discuss reparations is not only Herr Goldenbaum's private opinion but also represents the attitude of the East German Government then steps will be taken by Israel to follow this through."

"We will not miss this opportunity," he declared, indicating that Herr Goldenbaum's Press statement was the first indication Israel had had of any sign of willingness on the part of East Germany to discuss the subject of Israel's claim for $500,000,000 compensation for material damage suffered by the Jewish community in the Nazi regime in what is now the Eastern Zone of Germany. — Associated Press.

Discussions On Middle East Defence

Washington, Sept. 22.
Mr Forbush, Turkish Ambassador to the United States, said today that his Government, the United States and France were studying very closely new proposals to end the present deadlock on Allied Defence arrangements in the Middle East.

The Ambassador said the four countries, which formally proposed a non-Communist Middle East Defence Command last year, were determined to do something about Middle East defence as soon as possible.

The original proposal, was turned down by Egypt.
Mr Erkin gave his statement after a 30-minute conference with Mr Dean Acheson. They had discussed the Middle East problem and the world's situation in general, Mr Erkin said. — Reuter.

Russian Rubber Purchases

Buying Heavily In Great Britain

London, Sept. 22. Russia is increasing her rubber purchases in Britain and her trade agents are again buying heavily, official figures disclosed today. The latest Board of Trade returns showed that the Soviet Union last month bought 4,340 tons compared with only 50 tons in the same month last year.

In July the Soviet Union bought 12,003 tons compared with only 10,750 tons in the same month of 1950.

Russian agents are taking advantage of lowered prices for natural rubber and are getting greater quantities for sterling of which they have been running short recently.

In eight months of this year the Russians have bought from Britain a total of 70,235 tons for £27,747,004. This compares with Russian purchases of last year of 18,510 tons for £10,345,010.

MARKED TREND

British officials state that the increase is partly due to the fact that Russian rubber purchases previously transacted through Malaya are now being made through Britain which re-exports Malayan rubber to the Soviet Union.

Nevertheless, commodity experts claim that there has been a marked upward trend in Russian purchases in recent weeks.

Britain has so far declined to bar rubber exports altogether to the Soviet Union, but she has undertaken to limit exports to the Russians to such quantities as might reasonably be considered to serve internal, non-military requirements. This quantity has been fixed at some 80,000 tons per year.

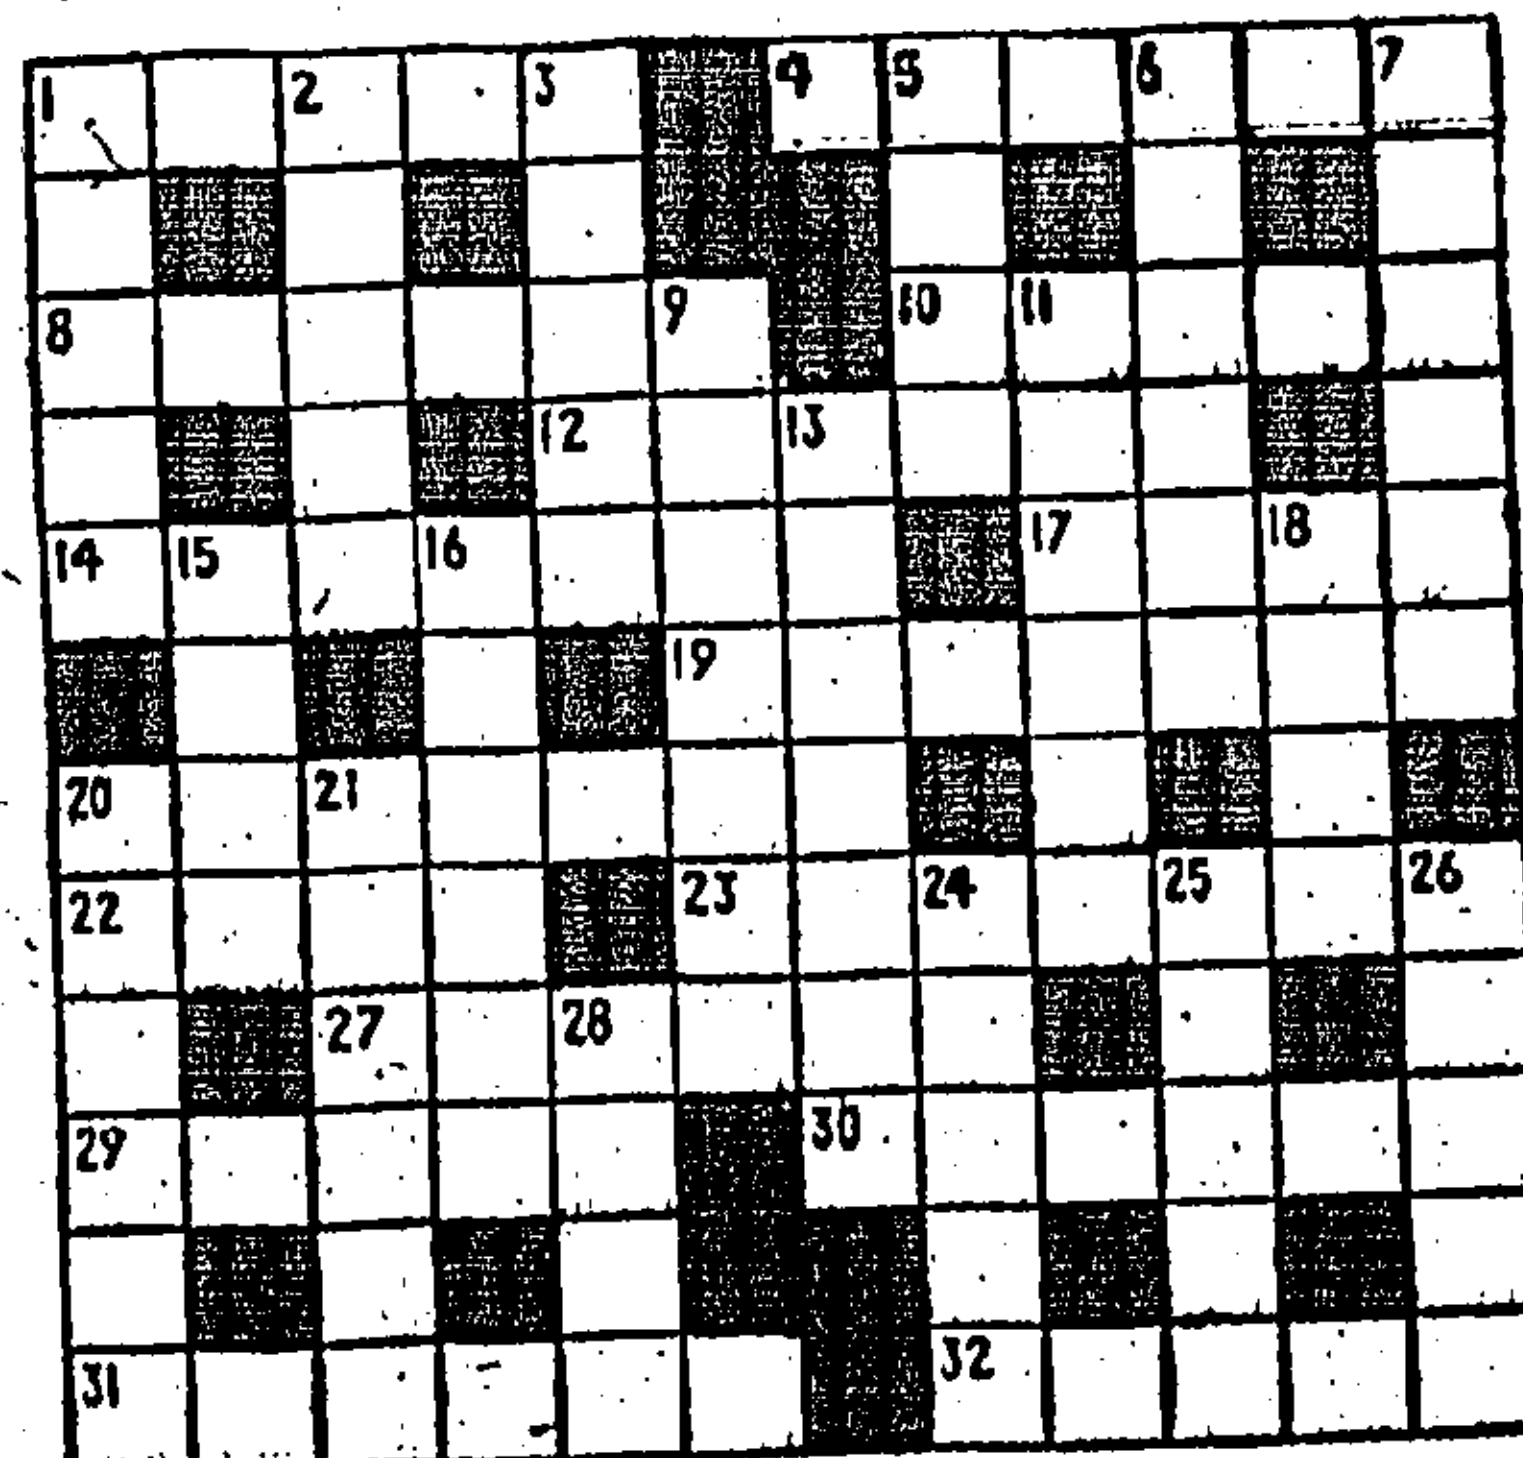

The latest official returns of the Board of Trade showed that Russia has already drawn most of her annual allowance by the end of August—more than 70,000 tons.—United Press.

"PRAVDA" ON WARPATH

London, Sept. 22. The Soviet Communist Party newspaper Pravda today criticised "serious shortcomings" in some of the country's scientific institutes.

Sometimes, the newspaper said, quoted by Moscow Radio, they were "occupied by unimportant problems of little importance while they neglect fundamental problems of science." The newspaper also complained of the tardiness of some institutions in applying the results of their research to industrial production.—Reuter.

U.S. MARINES LAND IN DENMARK

Oslo, Sept. 22.

The wind having abated, the landing of 1,500 United States Marines as part of "Operation Mainbrace" began at 4:30 p.m. today east of Skagen Lighthouse in the extreme north of Denmark.

After waiting for almost 18 hours for the signal, the landing of the Marines from three transports went without a hitch. They immediately formed into a skirmishing line.

Half an hour after the operation had begun a red flag was hoisted signifying that all had safely disembarked.

Queen Mother To Visit S. Rhodesia

Salisbury, Sept. 22.

The Queen Mother will travel to Salisbury next year to open the Central Africa Rhodes Centenary Exhibition, it was officially announced tonight.

The exhibition will commemorate the Centenary of the British Empire pioneer, Cecil Rhodes, whose grave is in the Matopo Hills of Southern Rhodesia.

No date has yet been fixed for the Queen Mother's visit and the official announcement did not say whether Princess Margaret would accompany her mother.—Reuter.

CHOU ON WAY BACK TO PEKING

Moscow, Sept. 22.

Chou En-lai, Foreign Minister of Red China, left from the Central Airfield by plane for Peking at 5:00 a.m. today. Chou had been in the Soviet capital since August 17.

He and his delegation negotiated with Soviet Government leaders, including Generalissimo Stalin, an agreement by which the U.S.S.R. will continue to have joint use, with the Chinese, of the Port Arthur naval base until they have concluded a peace treaty with Japan.

Chou and his delegation were seen off by a number of leaders of the Soviet Government, by officials of the Soviet Ministry of Foreign Affairs and the Ministry of Foreign Trade, and by members of the Moscow Diplomatic Corps who represent nations which have relations with the Peking Government.—Associated Press.

King Paul's Criticism Of "Bad Greeks"

Athens, Sept. 22.

Abandoning his traditional neutrality, King Paul hit out yesterday at "bad Greeks" who, "instead of thanking the United States, insult her."

The King made his remarks in a brief, unexpected speech at the inauguration of an irrigation project at Mavronati, a small village northwest of Athens.

"I censure this. It isn't a Greek act, and these bad Greeks don't voice the sentiments of the Greek people," the King said. He added that he was "expressing the gratitude and thanks of the Greeks to the great friendly powers."

The ceremonies were attended by the new chief of the U.S. Mutual Security Administration (MSA), Leland Barrow, Cabinet Ministers and Members of Parliament.

The statement by the King and a similar statement by Ministers were interpreted as a direct rebuff to sections of the Athens Press which for weeks have been carrying on a bitter anti-American campaign, directed particularly at the U.S. Ambassador, John E. Peurifoy, and his recommendations for Government reforms.—Associated Press.

Chaplin Announces Intention To Return To America

Cherbourg, Sept. 22.

Charlie Chaplin, barred from re-entering the United States pending an inquiry into his politics, arrived in Europe today after 21 years and said he did not want to create a revolution.

Seated elegantly in a small wicker armchair aboard the liner Queen Elizabeth, the silver-haired, London-born film star sipped a glass of water and told about 100 pressmen:

"I am not a political man. I am an individual and I believe in liberty."

"On the other hand," he added, "I am not a super-patriot. Super-patriotism leads to Hitlerism—and we have had our lesson there."

Mr. Chaplin, due in England tomorrow, said the United States Government's decision to open an enquiry whether or not he should be re-admitted to the country would not alter his plan to return after six months.

Asked about American newspaper criticism of him, he said: "They have always tried to brand me in the United States. During the war I made several speeches sponsored by the United States Government. Some people took exception to what I said. There was nothing subversive in my speeches."

FAMILY DUTIES

Pressed to say whether he might eventually settle in England, he replied: "I have interests in the United States, which I have had for 40 years. We all have obligations and duties to ourselves and our family."

Mr. Chaplin went to the United States 10 years ago, when he was 35 and an obscure music hall comedian.

He has retained his British nationality and has been attacked by some American politicians for his supposed left-wing leanings.

Last Friday, just after Mr. Chaplin sailed for Britain—where his latest film "Limelight" is to be shown soon—the United States Attorney-General, Mr. James M. McGranery, barred his re-admission to the country until immigrant officials had "investigated his eligibility."

Mr. Chaplin radioed a protest from the liner. He said he had been granted a re-entry visa valid for 12 months.

Today he told reporters he would not comment on the Attorney-General's action. "All I do know is that Mr. McGranery is not aware of the facts," he said.

POLITICIANS' DAY

As Mr. Chaplin chatted to the reporters a photographer standing on a chair to get a picture overbalanced and crashed through a bank of chrysanthemums. Mr. Chaplin said: "Are the photographers through? That one certainly is."

But he quickly became serious again when he said in answer to questions: "In these days of turmoil and bitterness, today is not the day of great artists. Today is the day of politicians. People are only too willing to make issues about anything. I do not want to create a revolution. I only want to make some more films. I shall probably be in pictures until I drop dead."

Mr. Chaplin, the red ribbon of the French Legion of Honour in the buttonhole of his dark blue suit, then slipped easily into a discussion of his film plans.

He would like to make a film in Britain but so far to occupation had prevented that.

"I feel tremendously excited about going back to London," he said.

He added that he was looking for a house in England where he could have his children and attend.

BOAC'S FIRST PROFITS

London, Sept. 22.

The British Overseas Airways Corporation made its first profit last year—£274,999—Sir Miles Thomas, its Chairman, told a Press conference today.

He was discussing the annual report and accounts, published today, which listed the gross profit in the year ended March 31, 1952, as £1,235,722.

The net was left after paying £958,723 interest on capital, the report said.

Sir Miles told the Press conference that next year's figure might not be as good.

The current rate of improvement was not as fast as last year's, mostly because of a £250,000 loss through the airline fuel strike last June and July.

There is also a falling off in the mail revenue due to the import restrictions between Britain and Australia and the general slackening of international trade, he added.

DRAMATIC CHANGE Commenting on BOAC's first profit, Sir Miles said:

"This is a dramatic change from a couple of years ago when the total loss was £71,702,000 and last year when the loss was £4,505,000."

Sir Miles said that BOAC was discussing the establishment of tourist services to Australia with Qantas Airways.

But if equipment difficulties prevented the setting up of such a joint service with Qantas to Australia, he added, the British airline would go ahead with a tourist service to Singapore.

BOAC, he said, had flown about 2,000,000 passenger miles between July 1949 and June 1950 without an accident involving passenger fatalities or serious injuries.—Reuter.

Red Leaders Indicted

Washington, Sept. 22.

The Justice Department announced today that six Communist Party leaders had been indicted in Detroit on charges of conspiracy to overthrow the United States Government by force.

The six were among 18 party leaders rounded up by the F.B.I. last Wednesday in a number of cities across the country. A Federal grand jury returned the indictment.

The Department said that evidence against the 12 other persons taken into custody on the same day was now being presented to other Federal grand juries in St. Louis and Seattle.—Reuter.

Rhee Declines To Comment

Pusan, Sept. 22.

President Syngman Rhee returned from Seoul today but declined to comment on a U.S. Congressman's statement quoting Mr. Rhee as saying the State Department had worked for his removal.

The charge was made public in the United States by Indianapolis, Indiana, on Friday by Republican Representative Earl Wilson. He said the information came from Mr. Rhee during a visit the Congressman made last April.

The State Department in Washington denied the charge and said the U.S. refrained from taking sides in the recent Korean election. Embassy officials here branded the charge "ridiculous."

Wilson indicated that some official Korean reply may be made shortly through the Korean Ambassador in Washington, Dr. Y. C. Yang. There was no hint as to the nature of the reply.—Associated Press.

Churchill's Professor Faces a Big Decision

— By —

JOSEPH
LINDLEY

WHAT sort of person is Lord Cherwell, the man who was Mr Churchill's closest adviser in the recent war, and who today as Paymaster-General possesses such vague, mysterious, but reputedly far-reaching powers?

Professor Lindemann, his name before Mr Churchill made him a peer in 1941, has been for more than 30 years Professor of Experimental Philosophy in the University of Oxford. The title, like most Oxford titles, is archaic and misleading. The "Prof," as he is always called by his friends, is an eminent physicist, and controls the Clarendon Laboratory, Oxford's centre of physical research. His salary is just over £2,000 a year.

His appointment is for life and he has not relinquished it by joining the Cabinet. The university has given him a year's leave of absence, which is due to expire in the autumn.

COSMOPOLITAN

THE Prof is essentially a cosmopolitan. His family originated from Alsace. He was educated at the University of Berlin. He speaks French and German alike perfectly.

In his younger days, before the 1914-18 war, he was a first-class tennis player. His rooms are full of the silver trophies that he won.

The Prof is a man of very considerable inherited wealth. But his life, if not exactly Spartan, could hardly be termed luxurious. His rooms at Christ Church are plainly—some would say hideously—furnished. He is a teetotaler, a vegetarian, and a non-smoker, although for him this abstinence is a matter of morals, but of taste. Indeed, the Prof regards those who mortify the flesh upon moral principles with dislike, even contempt.

TV, TOO

BEING a bachelor, the Prof lives in college, and Christ Church is his real home. Thither he repairs most week-ends.

Life for the resident fellow of an Oxford or Cambridge college is a curious mixture of discomfort and luxury. If the buildings are venerable, so, all too often, is the plumbing. Rooms may be spacious and dignified. They are apt also to be damp and draughty. But the Prof's own four-room set escapes these disadvantages. He has seen to it that they do not lack reasonable amenities of life, even including a television set.

The servant problem is non-existent for a bachelor living in college. The college provides service, and produces meals from the college kitchen. After a good—and free—dinner in Hall, the fellows retire to the Senior Common Room where they enjoy the old-fashioned pleasures of vintage port (which they pay for), dessert, and conversation.

The Prof seldom dines in Hall but after dinner in his rooms he usually walks to the Senior Common Room, invariably carrying a rolled umbrella and a bowler hat even for that short journey. In these agreeable surroundings he is the best of company. No one can converse so easily with guests, grand or humble, draw them out so well and give them the flattering sense that what they say is important and interesting.

OXFORD WORLD

A PART from Socialism, affection and pomposity are the only things which the Prof does not easily tolerate. A guest once sententiously observed that one should not kick a man when he is down. On the contrary, the Prof is said to have replied, "It is the only time to do it for then he can't kick you back."

It would be absurd to pretend that the Prof has any deep knowledge of the great mass of the British people. His world has always been that of the Oxford college and the English country house. Admittedly there are not the same—though perhaps they overlap more at the Prof's college than elsewhere—but they have in common a certain detachment from the world in which the majority of men spend their days.

This remoteness would be a serious defect in someone who sought to be a national leader and to base his power upon mass support. But if the Prof ever had such ambitions they have long since vanished. His one venture in the field of popular electioneering—an attempt to stand in 1937 at a by-election for the University—was a disastrous failure.

The Prof's career in politics has nothing to do with popular support. It is based on some thing which over since 1940 has been even more valuable, the support of Mr Churchill.

DEEP DEBT

THEIR friendship is of long standing. Mr Churchill greatly admired the courage and confidence displayed by the Prof as an experimental pilot in the 1914-18 war. Convinced on theoretical grounds that the proper way to counteract spin in aircraft was the precise reverse of that preached by authority, the Prof took up an aeroplane, deliberately put it into a spin, and triumphantly demonstrated the correctness of his calculations.

Mr Churchill has always respected the Prof's great ability—rare among scientists—at expounding complicated technical subjects in terms intelligible to the layman. Mr Churchill has given ample testimony to the services rendered by the Prof as his scientific adviser in the war.

The Prof accepted office last October with real reluctance. Those who know him find it hard to believe, despite all his loyalty to Mr Churchill, that the Prof will prefer the fleeting and precarious joys of political power to the place which has been his real home for more than 30 years.

Inside lies the answer to a week-old riddle: What is causing the frequent showers of "pink rain" in Southern England?

Each of the objects inside the parcel is sprinkled with a strange pink liquid which has been falling from the skies to an area 25 miles square around Fleet, Hants.

PINK-SPOTTED PEARS

SOON the chemists may be able to tell what caused 41-year-old Mr J. Muller, a Fleet caterer, to see pink spots before the eyes at seven o'clock in the morning.

Mr Muller opened his bathroom window after a short rain shower to take a deep breath of fresh air. He blinked and looked again. What he saw made him gasp.

His house, the lawn, concrete pathways, his seven geese—as well as his bulldog, Ruddy—were covered with glistening magenta-coloured spots.

Bellicose Insults Form Their Language Of Peace

By HUGO DEWAR

FRIENDS of the Soviet Union often point out that a number of sky-scrappers are being built in Moscow. Would any government contemplating war proceed to erect targets so vulnerable to atomic attacks? they demand triumphantly. If this argument is accepted it is clear that it must apply equally to the Western world, where plenty of fine targets are also being built. Unfortunately the Soviet sympathisers are not prepared to admit that the argument cuts both ways.

This is a minor illustration of the peculiar mental processes of the Stalinists and their fellow travellers. Any fact, no matter how trivial, may be adduced to prove the peaceful intentions of the Soviet Government; no fact, however weighty, may be advanced to show that the governments of the West also desire peace.

Yet in the Stalinist approach to the problem of peace there is a fundamental contradiction. Stalin himself has assured the world that it is possible for the capitalist and Communist systems to co-exist peacefully, and even to co-operate.

Jacques Duclos, the French Communist leader, however, writing in the Cominform Journal in April 1952, referred to Stalin's statement and then went on to allege that "the rulers of the imperialist camp, however, want neither this co-existence nor this co-operation. They know that the capitalist system cannot win in peaceful competition with the socialist system... In these conditions the imperialists regard war as necessary..."

Duclos was reiterating a point of view that has been accepted as axiomatic by Soviet leaders ever since the Russian Revolution. Yet Stalin's statement directly contradicts it and, the so-called World Peace Campaign, inspired by the Soviet Government, only makes sense if the Kremlin is really convinced that the peaceful co-existence of the two systems is possible.

If the Soviet leaders still adhere to the time-honoured formula of the inevitability of "imperialist attack" against the Soviet Union, then their "peace" campaign can only be pure hypocrisy, a cynical manoeuvre designed to divide and weaken the "enemy."

It may be suggested that this is to misunderstand the Soviet attitude; that the Soviet leaders do believe that it is possible to co-exist peacefully with the West, but that they do not believe the Western leaders are willing to accept this principle at present, and that the peace campaign is designed precisely to "win" their acceptance. Although there appears at the moment to be few, if any, hard facts to support such an argument, one cannot but hope that there may be something in it—otherwise the conclusion that the Soviet Government really believes war to be inevitable is inescapable.

Are there any signs that the Soviet Government is making a sincere effort to achieve an understanding with the West? The Quakers' delegation which went to the Soviet Union in 1951 reported that it could testify to a more conciliatory temper towards the West, and to the persistence with which the necessity for peace and of peaceful understanding between the major powers is being commended to the Soviet people. Had this fully corresponded with the facts, it would have been most welcome news. Unfortunately, although it was undoubtedly an accurate report of the impression received by the Quakers' delegation, it was not an accurate estimate of official Soviet temper towards the West.

Soviet propagandists were then, as now, still referring to the "Anglo-American aggressors," to the "cannibals in the uniforms of the United States and British armed forces" who "have surpassed in savagery and atrocities all crimes known to history," and so on and so forth.

The Quakers need only have turned the pages of the Soviet magazine, Krokodil, to discover

What is behind the "Peace" conference that is being convened in Peking at the end of this month? This article, taking the mask off all Communist "peace" propaganda, offers an explanation.

how deceptive surface appearances can sometimes be, for the scurrilous abuse of all things Western was then in full blast, and its violence has not abated since.

It should be noted that Soviet "peace" propaganda presents two faces to the world: one with a pleasant, friendly smile, the other distorted by rage and hate. Officially-sponsored delegations to the Soviet Union (and there are no others) are met and welcomed by the former. They are not always fully aware of the latter, and even if they are, the hospitality of their hosts tends to make them forget it temporarily.

But even the most charitably disposed person could hardly characterise the following diatribe as conciliatory: "It is an open secret that the American troops in Europe are units recruited in the most invertebrate hooligans and thugs, from men lacking moral sense, who for good rations and an extra dollar will stop at no crime against the peoples of Britain, France, Italy, Austria and Germany."

With the best will in the world, it is not possible to detect in this gutter raving any indication of a desire to establish friendly relations with the West. Yet this is no aberration on the part of an obscure journalist. It is culled from the columns of the Cominform Journal, which abounds in such material, is printed in all the major languages of the world, and has a circulation of millions. It is part of a systematic, sustained campaign carried on day in and day out, and it is directly inspired and encouraged by the Soviet Government. And one is asked to accept this belittling yelling of insults as the language of peace!

When Kim Il-sung, the North Korean Communist leader, at a loss for a convincing argument, finds it necessary to inform the world through the Cominform Journal that "as far back as the days of the war against the Indians, the forefathers of the Truman vandals scalped captured Indians," one may smile at the puerility. But the vicious intent is there, however stupid the form.

Nowhere in Stalinist peace propaganda is there any sign of the fraternal hand of reconciliation stretched across the frontiers of war; on the contrary, the dominant tone is one of malice and hate. The parents, wives, sweethearts, and friends of the American soldiers may be forgiven if they feel that these "disarmament" such "comtemplable" pervasions are not trying very hard to find a way to "peaceful co-existence."

The aim of such propaganda, pursued by the Stalinists all over the world, is clear. By singling out the American for particular abuse it is hoped to foster national antagonisms and hatreds and to sow discord among the peoples of the West. It is, unfortunately, necessary to remind those who are impressed by the ostensible sweetness and reasonableness of the Russians to take an occasional look at this other "face" of their propaganda.

After flying saucers . . . PINK RAIN

VICTOR SIMS looks into a new sky riddle

"I summoned my wife to convince me that I was wide awake," he says. "She was amazed." "That same day Mr Muller climbed his pear trees to pluck some pink-spotted fruit . . . and descended with his arms covered with blotches which are still visible."

"I am convinced that some secret war weapon has misfired," he contends. "Five miles away, at Farnborough, Miss Ellen Toomey, a housekeeper, returned from her shopping and tidied her hair in a mirror."

"I was horrified to find my face a mass of pink spots," she says. "I thought I had contracted a rare disease—and was about to run to the phone for the doctor."

"Then I glanced down and noticed that my shopping bag, too, was sprinkled with a kind of pink ink stain. So were my dress and stockings."

Miss Toomey scrubbed her face with scouring powder for nearly three hours before the spots showed any signs of disappearing. "They have gone from my face now," she tells me, "but they won't budge from my clothing."

Who does she blame? "The spots look as if they might be from agricultural sprays used by farmers," she says. "But I'm told that the liquid they use does not stain."

Driving his lorry along the Farnborough Road, as he does most days, is Mr W.H. Viggers, of Highfield Gardens, Aldershot. Says he:

"My eyes were on the road ahead when I noticed splashes of pink appearing on the windscreen, along the bonnet and on my hands and arms."

"I stopped the lorry and got out to inspect it. The vehicle was covered with a pink spray. Passers-by thought I was suffering from chicken pox."

NOT FROM PLANE

MR VIGGERS remembers hearing the drone of a plane overhead about the time of the shower of pink rain. "Perhaps the aircraft jettisoned some liquid," he ventures.

But a scientist investigating the phenomenon points out that the spots are far too close together to have been released by a plane.

After a preliminary examination, he says, the indelible pink spots appear to consist of a type of oil-soluble dye. He agrees that this is the substance used in the manufacture of coloured smoke screens.

NOW IT'S "STANDING ROOM ONLY" FOR TV OF THE WALCOTT-MARCIANO FIGHT

By PETER WILSON

New York.

I am here to report that everyone connected with the world's heavy-weight title contest scheduled for September 23 at Philadelphia, is already talking of an uncommonly fine fight.

In fact, I have rarely come across a collection of tongues which are in such splendid shape after going through long and arduous workouts. As he is the champion—at least until tonight—let us hear from Arnold Cream, better known to the patrons of what is quaintly known as "the fancy" as Jersey Joe Walcott.

Walcott is quite sure it is not going to be "whipped cream" in Philadelphia. There is another reason for putting Walcott first which is covered by that old tag, "age before beauty."

There may be some doubt about challenger Rocky Marciano's beauty, but there is absolutely no question about Walcott's age—except how much of it he has accumulated.

EASIEST FIGHT

Walcott admits to having celebrated his 38th birthday, which would make him 10½ years older than Rocky. But unkind critics say that he has probably celebrated it at least four times.

Walcott has this to say about Marciano: "This will be the easiest fight I've had."

It will be the seventh time Jersey Joe has been involved in a title fight, incidentally. He added: "Marciano is an amateur. He wouldn't have qualified 11 years ago for Joe Louis's bum-of-the-month tour."

That was in 1941 when the great Brown Bomber took on the opponents for the world's title in under nine months and battered them all. Just to round off his impressions of his opponent, Walcott prophesied: "I can knock him out in the first as easily as I can in the tenth round."

FILM VIEW

Marciano, who has never seen Walcott in action, to use the phrase loosely, except on TV did take time out the other day at Grossingers—where Randolph Turpin trained for his unsuccessful fight against Sugar Ray Robinson and where Joey Maxim prepared to beat Robinson—to look at a couple of fight films involving Walcott.

They were the one showing the veteran being outpointed by the young, white heavy-weight Ike Layne, and the one showing him scoring his seven-round knockout over Ezzard Charles to win the title.

Said Marciano's trainer, Charley Goldman: "I wanted him to see Walcott at his worst and also at his best."

Marciano's own predictions about the fight were almost bloodless. Questioned about his intention of knocking out the champ, he said: "I'm going to try."

And what tactics would he use? "I'll crowd him. That's my style."

But former champion Gene Tunney, whose tongue is of the literary variety, finished up an article summing up both men with a paraphrase after Shakespeare—a long way after.

"In 'Gentleman Gene's' view Jack Dempsey in his prime would have taken Harry Matthews (Marciano's last victim) in two rounds, Ezzard Charles in two, Walcott in five, and Marciano in one—and all on the same night."

As Tunney, of course, twice defeated Dempsey, he doesn't by implication come out of these phantom fights too badly himself.

Walcott will undoubtedly have a considerable weight advantage. He will probably come in at one or two pounds over or under 14 stone, while Marciano has a job to make more than 13 stone.

Jersey Joe is restricting his training work to some 50 rounds of sparring in all. Ezzard Charles has already gone through 77 rounds. At the moment the odds are nine to five in favour of the challenger.

Marciano, the first white man for years with a real chance at boxing's top prize, has created most of the interest in the scrap—and you can get some idea of how great it is by the way TV is going for it.

CINEMAS ONLY

There will be no TV into private homes. It will be restricted to cinemas, specially equipped for it, stretching from New York to California.

When the cinema round the corner from the office where I am writing this announced reserved seats for nearly 30s., they were sold out inside two days, and now there is standing room only.

Other boxing news here centres round Joey Maxim and Sugar Ray Robinson. Maxim has been ordered to defend his title against perennial challenger, Archie Moore, and now his manager, Jack Kearns, is talking about taking the fight out to the gambling and divorce town, Las Vegas, in the "Wild West" State of Nevada.

The news about Robinson is murky. A New York paper has printed pictures of him rehearsing a dance act which he says he is going to take on tour.

It looks as though we have seen the last of Robbie the Ringman, but he refuses to confirm, deny, or discuss his retirement from boxing. City, a chap called Turpin is probably quite interested, among others.

LADIES' LAWN BOWLS LEAGUE

The Ladies' Lawn Bowls League—first in the history of the Colony—opened last Saturday with the Kowloon Cricket Club "A" and "B" teams meeting and Kowloon Dock "A" playing Talook.

KCC "A" won by 16 shots to 10, while Kowloon Dock "A" accounted for Talook 29-16.

THE GREATEST HORSE IS A CONJURER TOO

Tulyar, who stamped himself as one of the greatest horses of all time by winning this year's St Leger at Doncaster, England, is seen here about to try his favourite trick. He likes to take his Newmarket trainer's handkerchief between his teeth and inch it out from his breast pocket.

Then a final flick, and Hey Presto, it's out. Today, Tulyar is worth £250,000 to his owner, the Aga Khan. Already he has won £77,700 in stakes—an English record.

Next year he will be trained for races totalling another £70,000. And he is worth £150,000 as a stallion.—Express Photo.

Greatest English Team In Recent Years Will Play Irish League Tomorrow

When England beat Austria 3-2 in Vienna last May it was acknowledged that England had found the greatest team of recent years. The accent is on the word team.

Fittingly then, the League selectors have chosen the same players, with one exception, for the game against the Irish League at Wolverhampton on September 24.

The omission is, however, rather unfortunate. For the player concerned, Eckersley of Blackburn, had recently requested a transfer because he felt his chances of staying in the England XI were not improved while he remained with a Second Division club.

The idea was "too banished" by League officials and his request was turned down by the club. What then does one make of the decision to play Garrett at left back against the Irishmen instead of Eckersley?

Irish Team To Play England Selected

Belfast, Sept. 22.

The Irish soccer team to meet England on October 4 was announced today as follows:

Uprichard (Swindon), goal; Cunningham (St. Mirren) and McMichael (Newcastle), full-backs; Blanchflower (Aston Villa), Dickson (Chelsea) and McCourt (Manchester City), half-backs; Bingham (Sunderland), Darcy (Chelsea), McMorran (Barnsley), McIlroy (Burnley) and Tully (Glasgow Celtic), forwards. The reserve to travel will be Neil (Glenfort).

All 11 players have represented Ireland in previous matches and the team is very much as expected. Nine of the men were in the last Irish international team, against Wales in March, the two changes being Cunningham for Graham of Doncaster and Tully for Lockhart, who recently joined Aston Villa.

Graham was originally selected but Doncaster would not see their way clear to release him. Cunningham did not play for his country last season but appeared against Wales in 1950/51 and he recently did well in a Irish trial.

It is 25 years since Ireland beat England in a full international and they are not expected to do so on this occasion.

CROWD MOBS COMEDIANS

Maldenhead, Sept. 22.

British comedian Ted Ray and crowd-mobbing comedian Bob Hope and Bing Crosby today in a golf match fought against 10,000 people and a dog.

Technically the score showed a one-up win for the Britons but the real winner was the crowd. The uncontrollable spectators caused the scheduled 16-hole match to be cut to nine holes.

Gala Week At St. Andrews

By HENRY LONGHURST

Last Wednesday evening at St. Andrews Francis Outmet garlanded the neck of Lord Brabazon with the Queen Adelaide Medal, and by this token passed on the captaincy of the Royal and Ancient Club.

In the meantime, at 8 a.m., Lord Brabazon "drove himself in" with a stroke far down the middle of the same fairway on which, many years ago, he hauled amid much genial ridicule the first golf trolley to be seen in Britain.

Nor was this the only celebration scheduled for last week in St. Andrews. The Old Course being in every sense, like the two in Richmond Park, a public course, several clubs, of which the Royal and Ancient is but the senior, have grown up around it, and last Monday one of these, the New Club, so far belied its title as to celebrate its 50th birthday.

The new capital of the Royal and Ancient, now in its middle 60s, has touched life at more points than is given to most of us, and this in an age of unique revolutionary change.

He has seen flying from the days when he won £1,000 for a circular flight of 40 feet, to the recent events at Farnborough.

He ballooned from the Battersea gas works, and drove in the first race at Brooklands. He still toboggans down the Cresta, will take your camera to pieces and tell you what is wrong with it, and, as he is an ex-Minister of Transport, will criticise from practical experience the driver of a railway train.

Waiting to see the engine coupled on at Victoria on a recent trip to Belgium, he remarked: "Every driver one of these things?" On my confessing that I had not, he added: "It is like driving a very large sports car with two big ends gone and a puncture."

The picturesque, often iconoclastic, phrase comes naturally to the new captain, and is one of the causes of his being so widely prized as an after-dinner speaker. He once, in the House of Lords, observed, with suitable respect, that a former Archbishop of Canterbury was "talking through his hindside."

And when the bunkers at Royal St. George's had been flooded for what he held to be an inordinately long time, he entered in the suggestion book "That the water in the bunker at the 13th be changed."

NO PARTISAN During his term of office one outstanding golden rule will be, if not solved, at any rate tackled with a new determination—namely the ball.

Argument on this subject is interminable, but on one point at least I fancy 95 per cent of us must now be agreed. What is it? It is reduced in length or increased in size, or both, it assuredly must not go any farther than it does now.

For some years a member of the three-man committee detailed to investigate the question, Lord Brabazon has applied over the past few months a new urgency to it.

He even has a tame physicist in hand, and there has been much talk of "co-efficients of restitution" and "Reynolds numbers"—a term which conveys all to scientists and nothing to me.

It has even been suggested that the air resistance to a golf ball may in fact be less when hit by Hogan than by your humble servant, and if this is true—which is not what we were taught at school—it opens up a lively avenue for research.

It might even be thought practicable to achieve the best of both worlds, namely a ball which, when struck by the handicap player, goes the same distance as today, but when bashed by the experts who have caused championship courses to be increased, in the clutching the ball back to the tee it is reduced in length or increased in size, or both, it assuredly must not go any farther than it does now.

Among those injured were the boy's father, Mike, and his brother, Jimmy, 14. All the injured were taken to the Shepherd Relief Hospital at nearby Montclair Falls.

The accident happened when two cars brushed together on the first turn as they were completing the first lap of the 15-lap 99-mile race. One of the cars veered off into the crowd.

The drivers of the cars were not identified.

The Police estimated that a crowd of 100,000 was on hand for the fifth annual international event held in this central New York community.—Associated Press.

Race Car Kills One And Injures 12

Watkins Glen, N.Y., Sept. 21.

The Grand Prix Road race was called off on Saturday after a sports car veered into a group of spectators, killing a small boy and injuring 12 persons.

The boy was seven-year-old Frankie Fox. Eye-witnesses said the top of his head was sheared off.

Among those injured were the boy's father, Mike, and his brother, Jimmy, 14. All the injured were taken to the Shepherd Relief Hospital at nearby Montclair Falls.

The accident happened when two cars brushed together on the first turn as they were completing the first lap of the 15-lap 99-mile race. One of the cars veered off into the crowd.

The drivers of the cars were not identified. The Police estimated that a crowd of 100,000 was on hand for the fifth annual international event held in this central New York community.—Associated Press.

BIG TRANSFER FEES ARE FINISHED—CLUBS ARE TRAINING HOME-BREDS

Says TOM FINNEY

At St James's Park, Newcastle, last Saturday week I met Vic Keeble, young East Anglian centre-forward who was transferred from Colchester to Newcastle last season at a considerable fee. Vic, now in the Army, had just travelled 300 miles from his camp in Southern England—and then did not get a game. At the last minute Newcastle decided to play George Robledo at centre-forward.

They found Vic relaxing after a heavy lunch in the local YMCA. But I don't think he minded standing down despite his long trip. From what he said he was pretty tired after a night without much sleep. Anyway, George collected two of the goals in Newcastle's 4-3 win—their first of the season!

These are the sort of things that happen in the topsy-turvy opening to the season when clubs are often faced with two important matches in three days.

Jimmy Bowie, much-travelled Scottish inside-forward, is another who lapped up the miles. After a mid-week game with Watford, this was inside-forward whose talents have helped Chelsea, Fulham, Brentford and Watford—travelled to Aberdeen to visit his parents on Wednesday. On Friday he flew back to join his club travelling down to Torquay. Total travelling time inside 72 hours was something in excess of 1,800 miles.

HECTIC DAYS ENDING—These hectic days are now ending for all but the Third Division clubs. They, faced with 46 games a season as compared with the 42 for the First and Second Division clubs, have one more week of mid-week games.

This return to normal will, I think, show two marked effects. The first will be that football form, completely unpredictable from now, will begin to settle down. The second is that the directors, having assessed the playing strength and attendances, will begin to hunt around in the transfer market to remedy team weaknesses.

So far transfer business has been almost at a standstill. The only move involving big money took centre-half Ken Thompson from Aberdeen to Stoke. I must say it seemed a very good buy. Ken was a very sound centre-half indeed when Preston were at the Victoria Grounds earlier this week.

This reluctance to spend money has probably been caused by uncertainty as to how the new entertainment tax would hit attendances. Most clubs now have found that the increase in minimum admission fees—now 3d, higher than last season at 1s. 9d.—has had little turnstile effect. Several in fact are taking more money. Chelsea, for example, have drawn in 13,000 more customers in the first four home matches this year as compared with 12 months back.

HOME-BRED YOUNGSTERS—This money will soon find its way back into the game. But not perhaps in the shape of the tremendous transfer fees—touching £35,000—that we have known in the past. More and more now the fashion is to revert to the pre-war preference for home-bred youngsters. Here again the perfect example is Derby County.

Johnny Morris, high-priced international inside-forward, has asked for a transfer. Last week his position in County's side was taken by Don Hazeldine, 22-year-old, discovered 12 months ago in Nottingham junior football. Derby, too, have experimented with several other youngsters like Ray Straw, 19-year-old, minor centre-forward. It will pay dividends.

The bigger fees now, I fancy, will go for younger players who have just finished national service. This is certainly the policy of manager Stan Cullis at Wolves. Already he has spent sizeable cheques on Peter Bradburn and Jack Taylor, two young and highly-promising inside-forwards. Both are already in the League side. Moreover, Wolves, fortunate in that injuries have caused them to make only one change since the season opened, are very near the top of the First Division.

FORECAST FOR SEASON

One youngster whom I am told will move soon is Tommy Mulgrew, 20-year-old Scot with Northampton Town. He kept an experienced head—like Maurice Edelman out of the side for the opening games and, from all reports, he is a lad of the greatest promise. Already Derby County, West Bromwich Albion, Hull City, Sheffield Wednesday and Tottenham are reported to have shown an interest in his future. I gather Albion are favourites if Northampton, not one of the richer clubs, decide to sell.

Maybe forecasts can act as boomerangs. But to finish this week I am tempted to give you a personal list for the 1952 season. Here it is:

First Division: Tottenham Hotspur; Second Division: Birmingham City and Huddersfield; Southern Section: Millwall; Northern Section: Grimsby Town. And the Cup? Could it perhaps be the turn of Preston once again?

Colony Mixed Doubles—J. Hsu and Mrs. V. Fowler beat H. J. Armstrong and Mrs. Pearson, 6-7, 6-1.

Manchester United Aim

At Keeping Their Starlets At School

By W. CAPEL KIRBY & DAVID JACK

Manchester United believe in catching their players young. After signing Sammy Chapman United are keen to welcome another 14-year-old schoolboy international, Willie Reid, of Wishaw High School, into the Qld Trafford fold.

So convinced is manager Matt Busby that Reid will be a winner, he's willing to place the lad in a Manchester college so that his education is uninterrupted while he is being groomed for stardom.

We may yet see the day when Soccer follows the athletics line of adding brains to brawn by a 'varsity' education.

TAKING NO CHANCES—Charlton Athletic have signed the son of their millionaire director, Stanley Clikerton. While some ASA officials concern themselves over an Olympic four-year plan for Melbourne, chief adviser Harry Koskie is worried about preparations for a mammoth task only two years hence.

In 1954 our swimmers have to tackle the Empire Games at Vancouver in July, and almost without a break proceed to Italy for the European Championships in August. Seems to us the international programme planners have slipped up.

Tom Johnson has played his last game for Nottingham Forest. Two broken legs and a cartilage removal proved too much, but manager Billy Walker has seen to it that Tom doesn't also suffer from a broken heart by complete severance from football. He's now in charge of the Forest "A" team.

There are still some Cardiff City supporters who want to know why Iorwerth Hughes, Don Mills and Alf Rowland were so keen to leave Ninian Park.

We can tell them that all three players had housing difficulties, and the same problem nearly caused Mike Tiddy to return to Cornwall.

After all, players have been known to demand, and receive, houses from clubs these days.

Ernest Jackson, former Sheffield United wing-half and now trainer at Bramall-lane, thinks youngsters should get the League Soccer atmosphere as soon as possible. That's why his son, 15-year-old Albert Jackson, is a ball-boy.

Ernest hopes that Albert, like Alf Bottom, will find his way from touchline to League forward line.

"Wait till you see our outside left," said County chief Peter Williams, referring to Peter Williams, 21-year-old Nottingham and he spotted playing for South Normanton. We may not have long to wait, since Jack Parry will be leaving the country shortly. He is going to Germany with the Sherwood Foresters.

WAS THIS ONE BLACK?—Wing-halves give, and take, plenty of knocks on the field—but Roy Warhurst (Birmingham City) picked up an injury outside St. Andrews recently. Bend Sinister to stroke, a cat, Roy was so badly bitten and scratched he had to go to hospital for treatment.

Cardiff City wing-half, Ken Holliman, nursing a pulled muscle, may be in for a move when St. Bristol City manager, Pat Benley, would like Holliman at Ashton Gate.

One of the few Soccer clubs to report an increase on last season's attendances is Bristol Rovers. First three home matches were watched by 64,010 spectators—an average of 21,336. Looks as if the slump can still be halted by attractive promotion-seeking football.

Angus Seed "tapped" brother Jimmy about full-back Jimmy Campbell. The price was too high.

But a swap for young Barnaby, winger Arthur Kaye isn't out of the question—unless Spurs, recognising their need, step in quickly.

Crystal Palace inside-forward Johnny Rainford is again on the "wanted" list of many clubs. When Luton made an offer they were told: "We're not parting with Rainford."

Clayton To Fight Tommy Collins

London, Sept. 22. Ronnie Clayton, British feather-weight champion, announced today he had signed to fight Tommy Collins over 10 rounds on October 14. Clayton said the match was made at 125 pounds.

Federation Loses One Member

The defeat of a proposal at a meeting yesterday of the Amateur Athletic Federation of Hongkong and the Olympic Committee Board resulted in Mr Ho Ka-lau withdrawing, on behalf of the Hongkong Lawn Tennis Association, support of the Federation.

The resolution, tabled by the H.K.L.T.A., read: "This Federation shall exchange with the Chinese Amateur Athletic Federation of Hongkong two acceptable representatives whose status on the Board and the Executive Committee of this Federation is for liaison purpose and shall not be entitled to vote on any proposals put forward at these meetings."

A motion to obtain legal definition of members and representatives was defeated.

It was proposed by the Hongkong Table Tennis Association that an alteration be made to rule No. 18 (b) by the substitution of the following words:

"This Federation shall exchange with the C.A.A.F. of HK two acceptable representatives and shall mutually exempt each other from the payment of the annual dues. The two representatives of the C.A.A.F. of HK shall be accepted as full voting members of the Board as well as members of the Executive Committee in equal standing with the seven elected members in order to reciprocate the status accorded to our two representatives by the C.A.A.F. of HK."

The proposal was carried. Mr Harold Wing Lee described his experiences in Helsinki as a representative of Hongkong's Olympic Swimmers.

The meeting was presided over by Mr Ma Man-fai.

Callovers On The Cesarewitch And Cambridgeshire

London, Sept. 22.

Lady Baron's Stranger, to be ridden by Gordon Richards, became the new favourite for the Cambridge Handicap at the Victoria Club callover here tonight.

French Squadron, Richards' mount for the first leg of the "Autumn Double", the Cesarewitch, was well supported and is the second favourite for this race.

Ballechin, the favourite for the Cesarewitch at the first callover last week, retained her position, shortening from 100 to 8 to 100 to 9.

Another Cesarewitch candidate, who was well-backed, was the Epsom-trained three-year-old Westinford, who advanced from 25 to 1 to become the third favourite at 18 to 1.

Pink Jasper, who was the favourite for the Cambridge Handicap last week, drifted out to 25 to 1, Stranger replacing the 11 to 1 favourite.

Strathepey, 1940 Cesarewitch winner, was introduced to 25 to 1 for this year's race, while Fleeing Moment, successful in the Cambridge Handicap last year, was on offer at 40 to 1.

ALASKAN PULP FOR JAPANESE?

Washington, Sept. 22.
Three Japanese forestry experts will visit the State Department today to explore the possibilities of obtaining Alaskan wood pulp for Japanese use.

Tomo Mori, Press Attache of the Japanese Embassy, told a reporter he did not know who would represent the United States at the conference. The three Japanese visitors—Junichiro Kobayashi, Shinichi Tanaka and Dr. Koichi Aki—would be accompanied by a representative of the Japanese Embassy.

Neither the visitors nor the Embassy wished to make a statement in advance of the meeting. The visitors may explore the possibility of establishing a pulp mill in Alaska under control of a joint Japanese-American group. Franklin Hawley of the State Department's Japanese Section said last week he expected the discussions to be chiefly exploratory. Japan has been interested in obtaining pulp from Alaskan forests because Japan's timber stocks have been decreasing and because a principal source of timber supplies has been taken over by the Communists in Manchuria.—Associated Press.

Commonwealth Experts Begin Talks On Plan For Economic Recovery

Newsprint Price Up Again

New York, Sept. 22.
The Great Northern Paper Company announced today a 57 per cent increase in the price of newsprint effective on October 1—the biggest price increase in domestic newsprint since June.
In advising its customers of the increase, the Great Northern said that its new price for New York deliveries would be $123 a ton with the usual scaling for other sections of the country.
The Great Northern ships its paper from Maine.—United Press.

Japanese Aid To SE Asia Countries

Tokyo, Sept. 22.

The Japanese Government is expected to earmark next year a substantial sum to send Japanese technicians to Southeast Asia.

The technicians will train Southeast Asian students. This step will be the first Japanese move for closer economic co-operation with Southeast Asia.

Most of the technicians will be experts in light industry and cottage industries.

Ten technicians have already gone to India, Burma, Thailand and Indonesia to work under United Nations affiliates.

However, these countries have asked for more assistance and training.

At present there are not enough facilities in Japan to train teachers from these countries so the Government favours sending Japanese overseas.

It is believed the Government will later try and bring more foreigners to Japan for training.

This will entail expansion of technical schools and hostels, which will probably start next year. When ready, about 300 students will be able to come to Japan from overseas.

They will receive special language courses in Japanese. The Japanese Government, under its aid scheme, will then pay their training and living expenses.—Reuter.

Cotton Price Improves

New York, Sept. 22.
Cotton prices closed higher today with prices for December futures up as high as $24.45 a bale. After a strong opening, prices slipped slightly under the high due to profit-taking and hedging. The persistent liquidation in nearby October also had an unsettling effect on the balance of the market. However, cotton futures again strengthened near the close.

The market opened 10 to 20 points higher. After the first hour, prices ranged to 30 to 35 points higher, then closed 25 to 30 points higher. Prices closed today as follows:

A Pyrrhic victory is one in which the victor is so badly hurt that his victory is worthless. It takes its name from King Pyrrhus who invaded Italy in 274 B.C. to help the Tarentines against the Romans. He beat the Romans in his first battle but his losses were so great that he said: "One more such victory and am undone".

South African Government appeal in the High Court. Parliament Act case on October 27-29, not November. 3-5 originally planned.

Appeal Hearing

Bloemfontein, Sept. 22.
The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court announced today that it will hear the South African Government appeal in the High Court of the Parliament Act case on October 27-29, not November 3-5, as originally planned.
This means that the court will assemble a week before the start of the November term especially to hear the appeal.
